GERMAN AT SPA CALLS SOME TERMS IMPOSSIBLE

Belgians Refuse To Surrender Prority In Payment

CONFEREES MEET

Special Hearing On Question Of Penalties

(Reuter's Service)

Spa, July 5.—Herr Fehrenbach, the German Chancellor, in a speech to journalists today, declared that Germany was ready loyally to work at the task of the economic reconstruction of the world and the carrying out of the Treaty of Versailles, "within the limits of their possibilities," adding that he emphasised those last words.

He said that the treaty contained stipulations which were incapable of execution.

The limits of Germany's capabilities depended on the following factors: first of all internal tranquility was essential. Germany still contained a great number of unemployed which explained the recent disorders.

READY TO SHOW BOOKS

Germany's chief need was to increase production, which hitherto had not been sufficient for feeding the people, and the importation of necessary supplies from abroad. When this had been achieved, Herr Fehrenbach hoped that the economic renaissance of Germany would enable them to meet their financial obligations, and assume in some measure the reparation charges.

Herr Fehrenbach declared that he was most satisfied at having an opportunity to discuss face to face with the Allies the economic capacity of Germany in connection with reparation.

"We are ready," he added, "frankly to show our books to the Allies, and to submit documents which have not been specially prepared for the occasion."

BELGIUM'S STAND

Brussels, July 5.—The Belgian Minister of the Interior in the course of an interview said that there was one point on which the Belgian Government would never compromise namely their priority for the first instalment of the first payment made by Germany.

London, July 5.—The following official communique was issued by the Spa Conference today:

"The Conference opened at 11 o'clock this morning at the Fraineuse Chateau, under the presidency of M. Delacroix, the Belgian Premier.

"Mr. Lloyd George, Lord Curzon and Sir Laming Worthington Evans represented Great Britain. The heads of the other delegations were, M. Millerand (France), Count Sforza (Italy), Viscount Chinda (Japan).

"Germany was represented by Herr Fehrenbach, the Chancellor, Herr von Simons, Minister for Foreign Affairs, and Herr Wirth, Minister of Finance.

GERMANS PLEDGE LOYALTY

"After arrangement of the agenda, comprising chiefly the execution of the military, naval and aerial clauses of the treaty, reparations, the coal supply, and penalties, Herr Fehrenbach, in the name of the German people, expressed determination to participate loyally in the measures to be taken for the execution of the peace treaty. He announced the approaching arrival of Herr Gessler, Minister of Defense nd General von Seeckt, who had been urgently summoned and whose arrival the Conference decided to await.

"It was also decided to summon the German Minister of Justice from Berlin to participate in a special meeting on Thursday to discuss the question of penalties.

"The Conference adjourned until Tuesday afternoon."

Former Romanoff Envoys Here Seek To Capture Russ Ships, Is Charge

Shipping Paralysed Between Vladivostok And China Coast As Consular Officials Serve Notice On Crews That Vessels Must Be Surrendered

Russian consular officers, here and in Japan, hold-overs from the days of the royal regime but still functioning in posts whose connection with present-day Russia is unlefined, have paralysed sea traffic between Vladivostok and the China Coast and now are seeking to seize the shipping held fast in the harbor here and in Japan ports, according to charges made by Russian residents of Shanghai.

Three of these vessels flying the standard of the Russian Volunteer Fleet are in the harbor here, held for some weeks past, and the expectation was expressed yesterday that an open effort formally to seize the boats may be made today.

Formal notice has been served upon those on the ships, officers and crews, that they must surrender the vessels to Russian officials here.

This is understood to be in line with action that has been taken in Japanese ports by Russian Consuls who have held other ships of the Russian Volunteer fleet there.

QUESTION OF JURISDICTION

In the controversy which has smouldered through the past several months the contention of the consular officials is that the vessels of the fleet are wholly under their jurisdiction and subject to their orders. According to report and to statements credited to consular officials the ultimate purpose has been wholly to remove all these vessels from Siberian waters and to send them on charter through Suez or to remote ports wholly removed from jurisdiction of the authorities at Vladivostok who have been operating them.

The men on the three vessels here in Shanghai, the Penza, Simferopol and the Georgi have refused to recognise consular authority, holding that they and their vessels are subject only to the orders of the directorate of the Russian Volunteer Fleet at Vladivostok.

Much of what has been done in connection with the ships is ascribed to action taken by M. Feodoroff, who is at once agent of the Russian Volunteer Fleet and Russian Consul at Tsruga, in Japan.

He is said to have announced himself as unwilling to accept the personnel of a newly elected directorate of the Russian Volunteer Fleet and in the course of the troubled period in April in Vladivostok when the Japanese seized the city he is said to have announced that he could no longer recognise authority over the fleet in Vladivostok, taking over reins of management himself so far as he was able to do.

Following on this the vessels of the Volunteer fleet were held up as rapidly as they appeared in harbors in Japan and in Shanghai.

It is pointed out that the time to keep the vessels in idleness is particularly ill chosen, for every available steamer now is badly needed for service along the coasts of the maritime provinces and to Saghalien and Kamtchatka, for it is only in the few summer months that these waters are free of ice and the populations supplied with their needs for the long winter.

Members of the crews of the three vessels in the harbor here were in conference yesterday with Mr. Grosse and then were again apprised by consular officials that they must turn their ships over or the vessels will be seized.

MAY CALL ON POLICE

What procedure the Russian officials here propose to follow in taking over the ships has not yet been disclosed and the manner in which the seizure is to be made has not been indicated beyond one statement made yesterday that the police of the International Settlement may be called upon in the matter.

Efforts made last night to communicate with Mr. V. Grosse, Russian Consul-General, in connection with the matter were without success.

FIFTY SLAIN AS FATHER AVENGES CHILD DROWNED IN RICE RIOTS

HUNGRY PEOPLE FED

Wealthy Men Charged As Profiteers Subscribe To Relief Fund

(China Press Correspondence)

Chinkiang, July 6.—The rice riots at Chinkiang were more violent than at first reported. There were a number of boats raided by the populace who took all the rice they could from them.

The people say the boatmen had concealed the rice under a layer of wheat and when the people found it out they decided to take what they wanted.

The wife of the head boatman had an infant in arms and went to the back of the boat to be out of danger but one of the crowd threw both the mother and the baby into the water. Her husband pulled her out but could not save the baby. This infuriated him and taking a large sword he began to assail every one as they came to the boat.

SLASHES OFF ARMS

The boat being in mid stream the people had to climb up the sides and as they came he would cut of an arm, a hand or even a head as opportunity presented itself. The crowd kept coming and finally destroyed or injured very seriously the boat and took all the grain.

Several boats were robbed and in all something over 50 people lost their lives. Some of the bodies have been recovered but a good many are still missing.

MONEY FOR RICE

A subscription was made by some of the wealthy citizens including those who were accused of profiteering and now the cheapest grade of rice can be bought by the poor people for 100 cash a catty. Things are quiet and no trouble is anticipated.

Last night and early this morning a tremendous rain fell and in many parts of the city the water was several feet over the street and entered many houses but no damage was done. The farmers were anxious for the rain and now they should be thoroughly satisfied. It assures them of a good rice crop.

Crisis Is Reached In North As Both Factions Begin Troop Movements

Small Clash Takes Place; Tsao Kun Mobilising; Tuan Demands His Removal And Also Wu Pei-fu's

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Peking, July 7 (received at 2:30 a.m. July 8).—Field Marshal Tuan has moved a small detachment of troops to Chinghsientien, which is about five miles in the direction of Paotingfu after having paid up the arrears of money due his men. There has been no other troop movement and this one is intended as a threat to frighten his opponents.

Chang Tso-lin is reported to have wired to Mukden ordering that his troops be concentrated.

The small clash which is reported from Cho-chow, half way between Peking and Paotingfu, is understood to have been but a local affair which was unauthorised.

Tuan is reported to have demanded that Tsao-kun and Wu Pei-fu be deprived of their offices as a condition of peace.

Peking, July 7.—The menace of fighting is temporarily lessened as a result of the conference between Marshal Tuan Chi-jui and General Chang Tso-lin, after Tuan had ordered two divisions from Peking to Paotingfu, where the troops of Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu are stationed in force.

Marshal Tuan's ostensible motive is anger over the seizure by Tsao Kun of his munitions; but the actual cause is his opposition to the Chihli men for their high-handed policy in the Cabinet controversy, and Little Hsu's removal.

Peking appears to be in a state of panic. Trains bound for Tientsin are jammed with passengers. Prices on rooms in the Legation quarter are at a premium, and all hotels are filled.

There is no hope of early action on the Cabinet question, as the Anfuites continue to refuse to permit a quorum of Parliament to assemble.

No solution of the situation is in sight, as Tuan's threat to fight has strengthened the opposition to the Chang Tso-lin faction, and to Chow Shu-mou.

Little Hsu's whereabouts remain in doubt.

HSU'S TROOPS RISING

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Pek'ng, July 6.—Verisimilitude is given to the report of a rising on the part of some of General Hsu Shu-tseng's troops by the statement that the First Frontier Defense Division is being despatched to an unknown destination on the Peking-Hankow railway. It is learned in official circles that the Division mentioned is being despatched to Paotingfu tomorrow. There are no frontier defense troops at present in the vicinity of Paotingfu.

A large quantity of Anfu propaganda is being circulated in Peking at the present moment in furtherance of the Anfu policy of bargaining with the Government under threat of trouble occurring

Cox And F. D. Roosevelt Democrats' Nominees

Candidates Named On Forty-Fifth Ballot

James M. Cox For President

Governor James M. Cox of Ohio was born at Jacksonburg, that state, on March 31, 1870, the son of Gilbert and Eliza A. C. Cox. His father was a farmer.

Following his graduation from high school he entered a printers' office at Columbus where he learned the newspaper profession, meanwhile teaching in the public schools on the outskirts of that city.

Eventually he became a newspaper reporter and served for some years in an editorial capacity on the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

In 1898 he bought the Dayton Daily News and five years later acquired a controlling interest in the Springfield Press-Republic. Combining these two publications with other small semi-weekly newspapers he formed the News League of Ohio at the head of which he remains to this day.

On September 15, 1917, he married Miss Margaret Blair of Chicago, Ill.

Governor Cox was a member of the 61st and 62nd Congress (1909-1913) and has been Governor of Ohio for three terms of two years each.

Nominee Voices Idea Of An Ideal League Of Nations

"In giving its assent to this treaty, the Senate has in mind the fact that the League of Nations which it embodies was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and commity among the nations of the earth and preventing the recurrence of such destructive conflicts as that through which the world has just passed. The co-operation of the United States with the League, and its continuance as a member thereof will naturally depend upon the adherence of the League to that fundamental purpose."

POSTMASTER IN STRONG DENIAL OF DEWEY TALE

Everett Declares Writer's Charge Against Local Institution Is Wholly Untrue

Reply to charges that were levelled against the American Post Office in Shanghai—somewhat belated for the public here—were made yesterday by Postmaster E. H. Everett in connection with an article that appeared under the signature of Professor John Dewey, noted American writer and educator, in the publication called The New Republic some time ago.

Professor Dewey said in this article that the importation of narcotics into China is carried on through the American Post Office in Shanghai. At the time the article appeared Mr. Everett declined to discuss it, though it was called to his attention. He said then that the facts would be made known in due course and his statement is borne out by the recent appearance of correspondence Mr. Everett has had with the American legation at Peking.

DESCRIBES PROCEDURE

In a communication to Mr. Charles C. Batchelder, Commercial Attache of the American Legation, describing procedure in handling parcels post here, Mr. Everett says:

"Every parcel post package arriving at this office is inspected by an inspector from the Chinese Maritime Customs who calls at this office after the mails have been opened. No parcel is delivered without the authority of the Customs. All parcels mailed in America for Shanghai must be accompanied by a Customs declaration."

Concerning Professor Dewey's charges in The New Republic Mr. Everett's communication, which appeared in a Peking paper and which he endorsed yesterday, says:

STATEMENT UNTRUE

"Some time ago there appeared an article in the New Republic, written by Mr. John Dewey, in which it was stated that this Agency was used for the importation into China of narcotics. That statement is not true. I have had charge of this office for three years and three months and I have watched parcel post more carefully than any other mail. Not even a suspicion of the truth of this allegation has been discovered. Some one sent me a copy of that paper. I have made diligent inquiries among the Customs Officials and they inform me that they have never discovered a suspicious circumstance."

MAN WHO STAMPED OUT PANAMA FEVER DIES IN LONDON

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 4.—The death has occurred here from Bright's disease of Surgeon-General William Crawford Gorgas, U.S. army.

Surgeon-General Gorgas, who was a specialist in tropical diseases, will always be remembered for his marvellous work as Chief Sanitary Officer in the Panama Canal zone, from which by strong measures he succeeded in completely eliminating yellow fever, thereby rendering the completion of the canal possible.

He was a member of the New York senate from 1910 to 1913 when he resigned to accept the portfolio in the Navy which he has since occupied. He is young, active and energetic and American navy officers stationed here were greatly pleased to hear of his nomination as running mate to Governor Cox.

On March 17, 1905, he was married to Anna Eleanor Roosevelt of New York City.

He is a member of several prominent New York Clubs and the Army and Navy Club in Washington.

JAPANESE TO STAND BEHIND GEN. SEMENOFF

No Intention To Establish Buffer State, Declares Foreign Minister

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 6.—In the Diet today, replying to a question with regard to the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, the Foreign Minister said that he could not disclose the negotiations for reasons of international courtesy.

The War Minister stated that, while he was responsible for Army affairs, the Army was not responsible for the Nikolaievsk massacre and that, therefore, he would not resign.

The Foreign Minister stated that troops could not yet be withdrawn from Siberia, if Japanese interests were to be safeguarded. He said that Japanese residents at Chita would be protected but not by many troops.

The Minister stated that the Government had no intention to establish a buffer state by negotiating between Vladivostok and Verdhne-Udinsk. The Government would not forsake General Semenoff, although there would be a limit to Japan's assistance.

The Foreign Minister stated that he was anxious on account of the American agitation against Japan and was taking the necessary measures to cope with the situation.

ESTIMATE DAMAGE

Tokio, July 6.—A report, received from Nikolaievsk, states that the damage, done to the Japanese fishing grounds off Kamtchatka by the Partisans, is estimated at 8,000,000 Yen Certain Japanese residents are reported missing.

OHIOAN DEFEATS M'ADOO

Spirited Race Between Editors Promised In Campaign

SELF MADE MAN

Declares People Want Membership In Nations' League

(Special To The China Press)

San Francisco, via Manila, July 7.—The national convention of the Democratic party which has been in session for the past eight days was brought to an end today after James M. Cox was nominated candidate for the presidency, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was nominated candidate for the vice presidency.

The decision of the Democrats to place the Ohio Governor before the country as their standard bearer has given rise to the expectation on the part of politicians generally that a remarkable campaign is in prospect in connection with the race of Governor Cox and Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee, both of whom are newspaper editors.

Governor Cox's victory came early Tuesday morning after his supporters had defeated an effort to adjourn the convention set afoot by the followers of William G. McAdoo when they realised that the tide had set in against them.

It was shortly after midnight that Roosevelt's nomination as candidate for the vice presidency was voted by acclamation.

RELEASES DELEGATES

It was after the thirty-eighth ballot that the delegates supporting Attorney General Palmer, who in third place so long held control of the deadlock, were released. This was the turning point in the long fight.

Shortly after the final result became known Governor Cox received a wire of congratulation from Senator Harding, the Republican nominee who will oppose him before the country next November.

The customary post-convention scene of pandemonium let loose in a gale of cheering, stamping, shouting and noise-making in every form greeted the announcement of the final ballot.

The course of events in the closing hour is to be traced from the totals of the final ballots, which were as follows:

39TH BALLOT

McAdoo	468
Cox	440
Palmer	74

40TH BALLOT

McAdoo	490
Cox	467
Palmer	19
Davis	76

41ST BALLOT

Cox	540
McAdoo	427
Palmer	8
Davis	49

(Details of the last four ballots had not reached Shanghai at an early hour this morning, owing to storm conditions which interrupted communication.—Ed.)

(Reuter's Service)

San Francisco, July 4.—Democrats adhered to the tradition of not sitting on Sunday. In spite of yesterday's ballots, Mr. McAdoo's candidature has failed to make much headway and Sunday has been devoted to efforts to find someone more acceptable to the whole Convention.

San Francisco, July 5.—The result of the 36th ballot was as follows:—Mr. McAdoo 399, Governor Cox 377, Mr. Palmer 341.

After the ballot had been taken the Convention went into recess for four hours.

IS SELF MADE MAN

Gov. James M. Cox, nominated on the forty-fifth ballot to be the standard bearer of the Democratic Party in the ensuing campaign for the Presidency, is like his opponent, a self-made man. He is fifty years old and is serving his third term as Governor of Ohio. Like his opponent he is a newspaper man by profession, the publisher of several dailies and weeklies in his home state.

He is a staunch believer in and supporter of the League of Nations and his attitude on all questions of current interest and importance is well known. The following quotations are from an article which he recently wrote for The New York Times. They give as clear an outline of his views as could be desired and fit the Democratic platform on which he has been nominated perfectly.

International affairs touch the interest of practically every community now, and until the world-wide confusion is brought to an end the League of Nations will be an issue in the political affairs of this country.

If public opinion in the country is the same as it is in Ohio, then there can be no doubt that the people want a League of Nations because it seems to offer the surest guarantee against war. I am convinced that the San Francisco convention will indorse in its vital principles the League adopted at Versailles.

ATTITUDE OF SENATORS

There can be no doubt that some Senators have been conscientious in their desire to clarify the provisions of the treaty. Two things apparently have disturbed them: First, they wanted to make sure that the League was not to be an "alliance," and that its basic purpose was peace and not controversy. Second, they wanted the other powers signing the instrument to understand our constitutional limitations beyond which the treaty-making power cannot go.

Dealing with these questions in order, it has always seemed to me that the interpretation of the function of the League might have been stated in these words:

"In giving its assent to this treaty, the Senate has in mind the fact that the League of Nations which it embodies was devised for the sole purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the earth and preventing the recurrence of such destructive conflicts as that through which the world has just passed. The co-operation of the United States with the League and its continuance as a member thereof will naturally depend upon the adherence of the League to that fundamental purpose.

VIEW OF U. S.

"Such a declaration would at least express the view of the United States and justify the course which our nation would unquestionably follow if the basic purpose of the League was at any time distorted. It would also appear to be a simple matter to provide against any misunderstanding in the future, and at the same time to meet the objections of those who believe that we might be inviting a controversy over our constitutional right, by making a Senatorial addition.

"It will, of course, be understood that in carrying out the purpose of the League, the Government of the United States must at all times act in strict harmony with the terms and intent of the United States Constitution, which cannot in any way be altered by the treaty-making power."

"Some people doubt the enduring quality of this general international scheme. Whether this be true or not, the fact remains that it will justify itself if it does no more than prevent the nations of the earth from arming themselves to the teeth and wasting resource which is necessary to repair the losses of the war.

FAR FROM PERFECT

"No one contends that it is a perfect document, but it is a step in the right direction. It would put the loose ends of civilization together now, and do more toward the restoration of normal conditions in six months' time than can the powers of the earth, acting independently in ten years' time. The Republican Senatorial cabal insists that the treaty be Americanized Suppose that Italy asked that it be Italianized—France that it be Frenchized—Britain that it be Britainized, and so on down the line. The whole thing would result in a perfect travesty.

"The important thing now is to enable the world to go to work but the beginning must not be on the soft sands of an unsound plan. If this question passes to the next administration there should be no fetich developed over past differences. Yet at the same time there must be no surrender of vital principle. It may be necessary, if partitions and reparation require changing, to assemble representatives of the people making up the nations of the League, in which event revision may not be so much an affair of diplomats. But, I repeat, the pressing task is getting started, being careful however, that we are starting with an instrument worth while, and not a mere shadow.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY

Gather together the elements that are opposed to the treaty, and you will find that they are made up, first, of conspiring Republican politcans whose lust for partisan victory has apparently rendered them insensible to public duty; second, certain groups who have been deceived and to whom appeal has been made on racial pleas, and, third, interests which see in the League an absolute bar to German absolutism. The election in Switzerland shows that the opposition to the League in that country, in the main, was in the German cantons.

Government must be something to inspire reverence—not fear. Its works must reflect not only justice and impartiality, but at all times obvious good faith. When representatives of any cause use it artfully to accomplish even a worthy result, the mere fact of trickery breeds distrust and resentment. The spectacle of changing our charter of Government when two million American patriots were in Europe fighting for the preservation of the Government itself, no man can justify.

In working out of war conditions our fiscal system should be readjusted just as quickly as possible. We will need approximately $4,000,000,000 a year for current expenses and sinking fund and interest charges on our debt. This should be made up along the most careful and scientific lines, being certain that governmental tax does not become an incentive to high costs of commodities.

The excess profits tax, which was justified during the war, is not needed now. It should be displaced by a law carrying a tax of from 1 to 1½ percent on the volume of business of going concerns. This will yield approximately $2,000,000,000. The income tax and other normal sources of revenue should supply the balance.

REDUCE ARMAMENT

There can be no true economy unless the expense of armament be reduced by world agreement and unless a budget system be established. No business enterprise in this country could exist if it were run as the Government is. Appropriations are made without regard to what the revenues will be, and the supply bills prepared for the several departments are authorised by Congress with very little information as to requirements.

I served on the House Committee on Appropriations in Congress, and, impressed as I was then with the waste attendant upon existing practices, we adopted in Ohio, under my first term, a modern budget system. It saved the State millions of dollars a year. During the war, notwithstanding the increased expense of Government, we were enabled to keep our fiscal affairs on a stable base without increasing taxes and without invoking any new sources of revenue. Our budget system made this possible.

FISCAL RECONSTRUCTION

The period of fiscal reconstruction following the war will bring large demand for our minerals, our crops and the products of our workmen. We will have the ships to meet these trade demands, but the facilities of exchange should be improved. England and Germany before the war made great headway in the world's markets because they established agencies of exchange. To the Federal Reserve Banking act should be given such elasticity as will make possible the establishment of branch banks in important foreign trade centers.

A symptom that is not reassuring is the response of thousands bank check books to the call of the Republican National Chairman for funds. In too many instances, thousands of dollars have been subscribed for the single purpose of buying industrial peace. The raising of a campaign fund, staggering in its size, is in itself a harmful thing, but the dangerous phase of this circumstance is that there is a desire in certain quarters to install an administration which will apply force in the settlement of industrial disputes.

BAYONETS NOT NEEDED

We have gone through many of these troubles in the Middle West, and it has been our experience that person and property can be protected and the supremacy of the law can be maintained without the use of the bayonet. The military arm of the Government must be depended on, of course, in time of crisis, but this should be the measure of last record, not the first. There should be created a commission which, by direction of the President, would make a careful examination of the facts bearing on industrial disputes which affect interstate commerce. It should report the facts, but submit no conclusion. Upon the evidence public opinion will be formed. It can be depended upon to be fair, and it will always be dominant.

BROTHELS WANT CLASSIFICATION

Shanghai Gentry Meet In Best Places, Council Is Informed

Declaring that Chinese brothels of the higher order serve as a place of meeting and entertainment of prominent merchants and gentry in Shanghai, a committee of proprietors of Chinese restaurants, foodshops and mercantile establishments have addressed a letter to the Municipal Council protesting against the new vice regulations. They approve the regulations in general but object to the fact that the brothels are not classified.

This letter and one supporting it from the Chinese Chamber of Commerce are published this morning in the Municipal Gazette. There is published also the Council's reply in which it is said by the secretary, Mr. N. O. Liddell:

"In reply, I am directed to point out that those Regulations were brought into force in conformity with the Report of the Special Vice-Committee, adopted by the Ratepayers at their last Annual Meeting on April 9, and that whilst the Council does not concur with the whole of the recommendations made in such Report, it had, as a consequence of the Ratepayers Resolution, no option but to adopt them.

"The Regulations do not apply to Sing Song houses, which are bona fide conducted as such, and require no licence, but they do apply to socalled Sing Song houses which are in fact conducted as brothels."

Chang Flees To Wuchang After American Consul Blames Him For Murder

General Bursts Into Tears When He Protests Inability To Prevent Reimart's Death

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, July 3.—Sympathising with General Chang Ching-yao, former Military Governor and Acting Civil Governor of Hunan, who was deposed by the Peking government on account of his inability to hold Changsha and Yochow, the last military post in Hunan, General Wang Chan-yuan of Wuchang has sent a steamer up river to Kiayu, the place to which Chang retreated after the fall of Yochow, to take Chang to Wuchang.

Chang gladly accepted the invitation of General Wang and came to Wuchang by the steamer. He was received in audience at the Wuchang yamen by General Wang on July 1.

On seeing General Wang, Chang suddenly burst into tears. He said that he was terribly downhearted by reason of his present desperate condition and his defeats in Hunan. General Wang did his best to pacify Chang and promised to help him any way he could.

After the conference Chang came to Hankow. With some of his former staff and some guards, Chang is now living in a lane near the Patriotic Garden, Hankow.

HUSTON REPORTS

Mr. J. C. Huston, American Vice Consul of the American Consulate at Hankow, who went up to Yochow to investigate the circumstances of the murder of the Rev. William A. Reimert, Acting President of the Lakeside or Hu Ping College near Yochow, by General Chang Ching-yao's troops returned to Hankow on board the U.S.S. Upshur.

While in Yochow Mr. Huston opened an inquiry into this case with General Chang, who denied responsibility for the murder of Rev. Reimert while expressing his profound regret for the unhappy incident.

In an audience with the American Vice Consul, General Chang said that he had offered $2,000 for the arrest of the murderer. He also tried to induce Mr. Huston to believe that the real murderer was not a man in his Seventh Division but a soldier of the 14th Battalion, 15th Division, whom he said he had had killed for the crime.

DENOUNCED ANSWER

Mr. Huston expressed himself very forcibly to Chang Ching-yao as to this unsatisfactory answer and at the same time laid the charge for Mr. Reimert's murder directly against Chang himself—first on the ground that Chang had neglected to send guards to the missionary compounds (although the American missionaries had so requested) and secondly that General Chang's Seventh Division was occupying Yochow both inside and outside the city at the time of Mr. Reimert's murder.

POLICE CAMPAIGN TO CHECK HOUSE BREAKERS HERE

Five Burglars Are Given Prison Sentences By The Mixed Court

Determined to put a stop to the epidemic of burglaries that has spread over the Settlement in the last few months, the detective force of the Municipal Police Department has been active with the result that hardly a day passes in the Mixed Court that not one or more men charged with housebreaking appears for trial. There were five burglars before the court yesterday, all of whom were convicted and given prison terms.

A housebreaker who entered houses in Hankow and Pakhoi Roads was brought before British Assessor Grant Jones and Magistrate Yui and was given a sentence of 18 months imprisonment.

A burglar who stole clothing from 1093 North Szechuen Road was sentenced to three years imprisonment and re-expulsion by British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Tsang. The accused had a record of six previous convictions.

A gang of three housebreakers were tried jointly before Messrs. Blackburn and Tsang and sentenced to prison. They stole two gold watches, a gold wrist watch, 31 silver watches, five metal watches and nine silver watches from a shop at 59 Sinza Road, looted a shop at 1618 Sinza Road and another at 619 Peking Road.

When they were captured one of the men slipped his handcuffs and escaped for several hours but was recaptured. He got one year in prison.

Another had been previously convicted of a similar offense. He was sentenced to 18 months.

The third escaped with a sentence of three months.

DAIRYMAN FINED FOR TAKING FAT OUT OF PRODUCT

Court Is Shown That Milk Is Stripped Of Its Nutritive Value

Fine of $25 was imposed yesterday on Sung Ah-man, a dairyman at 53 Edinburgh Road, for extracting the butter fat from the milk he delivered to his customers. The case was heard before British Assessor Grant Jones and Magistrate Yui.

Mr. F. J. W. Melville, of the Municipal Health Department made the complaint and appeared as the principal witness in the case. He declared that he stopped a coolie who was delivering milk from the dairy and examined the contents of one of the bottles. He found that 28.4 percent of the butter fat had been extracted from the milk.

The dairyman protested his innocence and said that he had a foreign customer in Bubbling Well Road who demanded milk with part of the butter fat removed. He said this customer's milk was in a red bottle while all the other bottles were white.

Mr. Melville denied this statement flatly, asserting that all of the bottles were red.

The health authorities are watching the dairy situation closely and have declared their intention to prosecute all milkmen who adulterate their product.

French Receives Hostile Greeting From The Irish

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 5.—Field Marshal Lord French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, on landing at Queenstown from a destroyer yesterday met with a hostile reception from the crowd, which followed and hooted him in spite of the military guard.

Two Sinn Feiners were killed in an attack on police barracks at Thurles, County Tipperary.

GIVES WARNING

Mr. J. H. Thomas, M. P., speaking at Belfast, yesterday, warned railwaymen against abuse of sympathetic strikes which would lead to disaster. Labor representatives would not be intimidated by Sinn Fein or Unionists. Mr. Thomas added that he could not distinguish between the soldier who shoots and the man who shoots the soldier.

Churchill Calls Daily News Story Very Inaccurate

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 5.—In the House of Commons today replying to Lieut-Colonel L'Estrange Malone and Captain Wedgwood Benn, with regard to the report (published in the Daily News yesterday) of negotiations between Mr. Winston Churchill and the Russian anti-Bolshevist Colonel Golovin in May last year, in which Mr. Churchill is alleged to have promised to help the anti-Bolshevist campaign in every way, Mr. Bonar Law said that Mr. Churchill had informed him that the report was very inaccurate. For example the statements that Mr. Churchill had said he was carrying out Admiral Kolchak's orders and that British reinforcements had been sent to Archangel, not to assist the withdrawal, but to help Admiral Kolchak, were obviously absurd and quite untrue.

On the other hand, Mr. Bonar Law said, the Government's policy last year of helping the anti-Bolshevists was well-known and had been quite clearly stated.

Replying to the suggestion of a debate on the subject, Mr. Bonar Law said that it would be difficult to find time, but Mr. Churchill would be very pleased to deal with the matter.

BOCHKAROFF IS AT LAST ARRESTED

Murderers Of Utkin And Grajensky Finally Brought To Justice

(Reuter's Parific Service)

Habarovsk, July 6.—The militia inspector, M. Colesnichenko, who entered Harbarovsk with the militia on July 2, with Japanese permission, has arrested Bochkaroff and his staff at the hotel where they were living.

There was some fighting before the arrest could be carried out, during which one of Bochkaroff's men was killed and several wounded on both sides.

Amongst those arrested were the murderers of M. Utkin, the Soviet delegate on the Russo-Japanese Armistice Commission.

New Zealand Has Control Of Chinese Laborers In Samoa

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 5.—In the House of Commons today replying to Capt. Wedgwood Benn and Alderman James Kiley, who complained of the reindenture of Chinese laborers in Samoa before the issue of the Mandate for ex-German Pacific possessions, Lieut. Col. L. C. M. Amery, parliamentary under-secretary for the Colonies, emphasised that the [illegible] was entirely within the control of the New Zealand Government.

The Imperial Government had never at any time been responsible for the administration of Samoa. He did not doubt that any representation made by Samoan chiefs against Chinese labor would receive the fullest consideration from the New Zealand Government.

Lieut. Col. Amery refused to submit the question of forbidding Chinese indentured labor in mandated areas to the Council of the League of Nations.

Italian And Greek Troops In Clash

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 5.—The Smyrna correspondent of the Times states that a collision has occurred between Italian and Greek troops on the Aidin Railway on the boundary of the Greek and Italian zones.

The Greeks allege that the Italians were unable to prevent the Turkish threat to the Greek lines of communication and they therefore occupied positions a few hundred yards within the Italian zone.

The Italians fired on the Greeks and there were several casualties on both sides. The Greeks remain in their positions.

GERMANY LOSES IMMENSE SUM

Vast Fortune Is Gone; World Must Help To Rehabilitate

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, July 5.—The financial memorandum presented by Germany to the Peace Conference declares that Germany's pre-war national wealth amounted to 220,000,000,000 gold marks, whereas today after the loss of her colonies and merchantile marine, etc., it could not be estimated at more than 100,000,000,000 from which foreign debts of between 5,000,000,000 and 10,000,000,000 must be deducted.

The memorandum declares that Germany's economic recovery is impossible without financial recovery and asserts that the financial burden of 60,000,000,000 with taxation means a yearly impost of 4,400 marks on each household.

It points out that in 1913 eighty-one percent of Prussian taxpayers had an income of under 3,000 marks. The memorandum concludes by emphasising the necessity for economic liberty and economic collaboration with other peoples.

BALL FAMINE TO BE BROKEN HERE

Glee Club's Return To See Beginning Of Some Hot Contests

The baseball famine is about on its last legs and from now on the future promises plenty of baseball with action enough in each game to satisfy the most rabid rooter.

The particular enemy of baseball in Shanghai again butted in and ruined all idea of practice yesterday afternoon. The Bolsheviks vs. Regulars game scheduled for today will be played if no further showers put a wet blanket on the playing field. As a mid-week attraction it promises to be the goods. On paper it looks as if the Bolsheviki were going to make good on their threats to treat the number one gang rough.

With the passing of the big game on the Fourth, the attention of the fans will now be directed towards the California Glee Club series. The Club will be here in about ten days and then after a day or two of practice will be ready to take on all comers, but more particularly the Shanghai Club. They boast of some very fast players and the exhibitions will no doubt be fully as interesting as last year's great series.

Further news that ought to excite the fans, is the statement by Admiral Gleaves in connection with the Destroyer Division. They will arrive in Shanghai about the beginning of August and baseball will be the order of the day on the fleet's arrival as the ships can muster several good teams amongst the crews.

Defunct 'Wau Wau' Brought To Light In French Court

Produced In Criminal Libel Suit Of Max Engel Against Ludwig Soyka

Memories of the troubled days of war time were called up yesterday in the French Mixed Court, possibly somewhat to the discomfiture of a witness who was testifying in the suit charging criminal libel brought by Mr. Max Engel, former representative here of the Czecho-Slovak Government, against Mr. Ludwig Soyka. The witness in question was Mr. Karel Jan Hora, erstwhile sponsor for the defunct "Wau Wau" which—those who were familiar with the publication may remember—styled itself a 'Deutsch-Oesterr-Ungar Humoristisches Sonntagsblatt.' Several copies of the paper were produced in court.

The case opened in the French Mixed Court a week ago before M. Raynaud and Magistrate Chen, was resumed yesterday and will be continued next Friday. The plaintiff charges that Mr. Soyka made grave charges of various kinds against him, defaming his character and accusing him of a number of serious offenses. The testimony of several witnesses for Mr. Engel was taken at the opening hearing and in the course of yesterday's hearing testimony for the defense was being given by Mr. Hora and Mr. Carl Statz.

It was Mr. d'Auxion de Ruffe, counsel for the plaintiff, who produced the copies of the "Wau Wau" while Mr. Hora was being questioned. M. Premet is appearing for the defense.

Three Pickpockets Given Prison Terms

It was an unlucky day for "tram" pickpockets who appeared before British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Tsang in the Mixed Court yesterday.

One man who operated on a Seward Road tram and got a purse containing $5 is under sentence of two years imprisonment and re-expulsion. He had five previous convictions.

Another man on a Seward Road tram got a purse containing $10. He will serve one year in prison and be re-expelled. He had been convicted three times in the past.

A third pickpocket, who was caught on a Broadway tram, got $5 in loot and three months in jail.

Printer Is Caught With 3,000 Bogus Hupeh Bank Notes

Accused Man Declares He Received Paper From Japanese Friend

Three thousand counterfeit notes on the Hupeh Provincial Bank were seized by the police when they arrested a printer rooming at 699 Fokien Road, the Mixed Court was told yesterday. The printer was called before the court and his case set for hearing next Wednesday, the remand being asked by the police in order that further inquiry might be made.

The notes were for 100 coppers each. The printer, who has long been unemployed according to Detective Inspector Cruikshank, said he obtained the bogus paper from a Japanese friend. The inspector said he did not believe this tale and asked for time in which to investigate it.

The remand was granted by British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Tsang.

MALARIA

Its Meaning—Its Cause—and Its Cure

When Malaria (Mala-aria, bad air) was given its name scientists knew less about it than they do now, otherwise they would have christened it differently. Then the mosquito had a better character than he has today, when he is known as the carrier of the malarial germ, as being in fact chiefly, if not solely responsible for the existence of this disease.

So long as there are mosquitoes so long will they continue to spread the malarial poison. And once this poison gets into the blood it is only through the blood that it can be eliminated.

From every malaria-infested country proof has come that Dr. Williams' pink pills are the one means by which Malaria can be speedily and thoroughly expelled. Whilst cleaning the blood this world-famous remedy creates new red corpuscles to take the place of these which the germs have destroyed, and thus restores health.

Not malaria only, but most forms of disease consequent upon weak or impure blood, have been cured in almost countless instances by Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people. Anaemia, Debility, Nervous Exhaustion, Indigestion, Rheumatism, and the ailments peculiar to ladies are among the maladies they are curing every day. Obtainable everywhere, or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road Shanghai, at $1.50 the bottle, $8.00 for six bottles, post free. Today is the best day to commence your own cure.

The accounts show that all the money advanced by the State for purchase of raw materials has been refunded with interest, although large stocks, especially of colonial wool, are still unsold.

Annual Report Of China Association

Faint prospects for the early formation of a stable government in China, such as has been sought since 1911, are seen by the China Association which has just issued its annual report for 1919-20. The report, which is signed by Mr. F. Anderson, chairman of the committee, contains an interesting analysis of the political situation in this country.

The old regime have not only personal reasons for holding on to place and power, but there is the contingency that if the floodgates of political change were opened wide, the new leaders might be unable to maintain control. From the constitutional point of view, on the other hand, there is a feeling of resentment that the old system of government which collapsed under the Manchus is being continued under the name of the Republic, that it is as inefficient and corrupt as the administration under the Empire, and that the resources of the country are being squandered for unworthy ends. Time alone will show whether the moderate men on both sides can arrange a compromise which will enable the Government to steer clear of the dangers which lie ahead.

BANK CONSORTIUM

On the subject of the Banking Consortium the report emphasises that there is no question of killing healthy competition for industrial purposes, but the aim is to put a stop to the ruinous mortgaging of China's assets for purposes altogether different from those for which money had been freely borrowed in the past. One reform which is urgently called for is the establishment of a uniform currency throughout China. If the Consortium can induce the Chinese Government to undertake this work it would, says the report, be an excellent start.

Many complaints reached the Committee, during the year, of discrimination against foreign interests by the Japanese authorities in thier administration of Tsingtao. The principal complaints were:

IN SHANTUNG

(a) That the Harbor remains under the control of Japanese officials, with the result that there is discrimination in favor of Japanese subjects, and against those of other nationalities. (b) That the railway, which is protected throughout the whole length of the line by Japanese military guards, is administered in the same spirit, with the result that non-Japanese interests are prejudiced. (c) That the Customs are controlled by the Japanese authorities; frequent complaints have been made of abuses in administration, inimical to the interests of China, and which amount to a denial of Chinese sovereignty over a considerable portion of the Province of Shantung. (d) Almost the whole of the real property at Tsingtao has been appropriated by the Japanese Government, whose restrictions in connection with the sale or lease of land prohibit the development of all non-Japanese interests. It was reported that British subjects were called upon to remove their establishments, which were erected at considerable expense during the German regime.

ANGLO-JAP TREATY

It was recognised that the territory is still under military government, but in making representations to the British Government it was pointed out that it was generally understood that at the Peace Conference the Japanese representatives undertook that in administering the Port the spirit of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty of 1905 would be strictly and literally adhered to. The objects of that Treaty, inter alia, are: "The preservation of the common interests of all Powers in China, by insuring the independence and integrity of the Chinese Empire, and the principle of equal opportunities for the commerce and industry of all nations in China." The hope was expressed that it would be sufficient to call the attention of the Japanese Government to the complaints referred to above, to bring about a change in the local administration under which the spirit of the Treaty would be

BRITISH IN JAPAN

The question of the nationality of children of British parents of the second generation, born in Japan, was again brought to the notice of the Committee by the Yokohama Branch of the British Association of Japan. This is a matter, very naturally, on which British residents feel strongly, and have, on various occasions, addressed the British Ambassador at Tokio. It was considered that the preservation of their British nationality to future generations born in Japan was of the highest importance, and representations were accordingly addressed to the Foreign Office. The reply received indicated that it was receiving the closest attention of the British Government, and was being considered by a Special Conference as to Nationality and Naturalisation which was set up by the last Imperial Conference; it was hoped that, on the re-assembling of the Special War Conference, to submit recommendations in a sense generally favorable to the British communities in the Far East.

Sports Correspondence

Sport Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir,—I [illegible] watched today's baseball game with great interest and [illegible] teams which made the celebration game worth while in [illegible] there was one thing which seemed to me unfair. Any spectator who witnessed the game noticed that the sailors, when they were in to bat, had no benches to sit on, lying on the grass under the hot sunshine, while the home team had nice seats under the shadow of the grand stand. The Shanghai team helped themselves with filtered water and cold drinks while the visiting team had not a single drop to quench their fiery thirst. No bench, no water, is this the right treatment to the visitors? To my mind, the management of the baseball club ought to apologise about it.—Yours truly,

B. C. F.

Shanghai, July 5.

Answering the above communication, Doctor Downs, Chairman of the Baseball Committee, stated that the sailors were entitled to the use of the benches as well as the Shanghai team. They chose to sit on the grass of their own volition. As far as providing them with cold drinks and filtered water, if they did not partake of the same it was of their own choice also as it was common knowledge that all drinks were being served gratis on that day and one had only to call to the boys who were serving the drinks in order to obtain liquid refreshment. The gobs felt that they had been very well treated in every respect and were a unit in saying that they all hoped to be back shortly in Shanghai to play the home team again.

No Question What It's Made of

The ingredients are plainly stated on every tin of

and also in the advertising.

Choice whole wheat is separated into kernel and outer-coat—combined with a small amount of wholesome molasses, roasted separately and skilfully blended to give Postum a delicious, snappy flavour similar to high-grade Java coffee. But Postum is free from caffeine and tannin, the drugs that make coffee harmful.

Anyone with signs of nervousness, indigestion, heart flutter, sleeplessness or other ills so often caused by coffee, can learn something of value by quitting coffee and using Postum—

Delicious—Healthful—Economical

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be boiled to bring out the rich flavour. 15c and 25c. packages.

Instant Postum—soluble form, made in the cup with hot water instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are delicious, cost per cup about the same, sold by Grocers everywhere.

Responsibility

It is impossible not to wonder what the devotees of those ancient shibboleths, plot, suspense and situation, will make of this novel by a new English writer, James A. Agate's arresting and to some extent challenging "Responsibility." The author has himself determinedly demolished what small degree of suspense the book might otherwise hold, by the "Introduction," in which, as he says, he "lays his cards on the table," this "Introduction" being in reality his last chapter. He speaks of the essentials of his story as "a sorry hero, a mistress adored and abandoned, and a son," but it is not until two-thirds of the book have been read that we meet Clare. And yet in spite of all this, "Responsibility" is interesting, and very interesting it is real; an account of a human life, the life of a man who was not a villain, and was very far from being a hero, a man who was selfish, or perhaps it would be more nearly accurate to say self absorbed; a man of intellectual curiosities, and a very considerable degree of intellectual honesty; with the instinct of the average human being to look for the mote in his brother's eye, and to trouble himself very little about the beam in his own, to find easy excuses for his own weaknesses, his own self-indulgence. A parlor Socialist, he does not scruple to live on the income which he receives from money made in a business which he regards as dishonest; he never makes any really vigorous effort to intervene on behalf of his uncle's victims. He lives for himself only—until the war comes, and his friends and the "fine, sensitive creature" who was his son shame him into action. "Of all our little coterie there was only myself in England who had done nothing, had talked and had done nothing."

Set down thus baldly, it would seem that this Edward Marston who writes the history of his own life, was a distinctly poor specimen. But, presented as Mr. Agate presents him, we see him as an average human being with rather more brains than the majority, one whose selfishness was in great measure the outcome of his position, who for a time had high aspirations. Here in these pages we learn to know him as he knew himself, that secret self of each of us in which we keep hidden away the record of our spiritual failures, of the youthful hopes, now gray and drab, that once were glorious in rose and gold. For though Mr. Agate proclaims in so many words: "Illegitimacy's my theme, the slur of illegitimacy—oh, not the slur on the child . . . but the slur on the father." The book is more the history of one who for a while tried to soar, and then at last found his resting place not far above the ground. The unknown son who came to Edward Marston late in life did indeed bring punishment—"the worst punishment is that the joy I have in him is illicit, a theft from nature; my sacrifice of him shorn of all that nobility and grandeur which was every English father's." His friend, Claud Rodd, puts it clearly when he tells him: "Your fatherhood wasn't utterly base, but it wasn't considered. You never gave the boy a ha'porth of carp, you had none of the anxiety of him, you hardly knew he existed . . . you're a filcher of happiness." Yet it is through his realisation of this theft of happiness that Edward Marston, who had tried to do worthy things, and failed, and who had done cheap and trashy things and succeeded in making much money, is given a purpose in life. Only toward the close does Dick appear, and with him the theme of illegitimacy becomes stressed; but the slow disillusionment, the slow loss of that power to aspire which is itself the wings of the spirit, is the theme obtaining throughout the entire book, though it may well be one of which the author was not entirely conscious.

It is a sober-minded book, this novel of Mr. Agate's, the history of one who failed to reap where he had arduously sown, and whose best good came to him inextricably associated with the memory of his baseness, his shirking of "Responsibility." But it is also a very rich book, rich in character, in thought, in understanding, in comment upon life and art, original in style and treatment. It is a book by an unknown author; but it will be an indictment of the American reading public if either book or author remains long unknown. As conscientious in its artistry as it is individual in its point of view, there is nothing scamped about it, nothing careless or slipshod. That so finished a piece of work could have come from a 'prentice hand is surprising, but whether he be in truth a novice or not, we are much mistaken if Mr. James A. Agate has not definitely "arrived."

RUSSIA AND AMERICA

Open Gates to Russia. By Malcolm W. Davis. Illustrated from photographs. New York: Harper & Brothers. $2.

Mr. Davis seeks to awaken America to the opportunities that will be opening up in the new period of reconstruction which will absorb the main energies of the Russian people in the coming quarter century—opportunities in trade, opportunities to assist in the development of the intelligence of the Russian masses and the improvement of the social conditions under which they live, and opportunities for those who travel to visit in a new way a country with an intensely fascinating life in a phase of evolution full of significance for all other nations.

The author asserts that when Russia began to stagger and stumble under the burden of difficulties in reorganisation, America groaned and criticised her for failing to accomplish things which it was not reasonable to expect from Russia; that America gave up in despair when Russia fell a prey to Bolshevism and compulsory communism under the threat of the Red Terror, and that one difficulty endangering good relations lies in the misconception of Russia from which Americans suffer, our dominant impressions having heretofore been a mixture compounded from the tales of political refugees and from the Russian Imperial Ballet.

"In the first place, while energetic and intelligent private enterprise may have an important place and perform valuable service in the rehabilitation of Russian life and industry, it will have certain obstacles to face from the very start which do not face these other agencies. * * * The workers have had affairs in the factories absolutely in their own hands. They will never submit quietly to the old conditions in which the right of organisation was forbidden them, and in which they worked under constant and suspicious surveillance. They will not return readily to any system which puts power and the full control of the industry in which they work back into the hands of private management."

Mr. Davis declares that such unpopularity as Americans have to face in Russia is of the sort which results temporarily from a negative instead of a positive policy, and that there is no such feeling against America as there is among some Russians against Great Britain and France, that we are interested only to see a regime created which would guarantee the payments on Russian loans.

Better transportation, improved farming and commercial open doors are imperatively needed. These subjects the author discusses at length.

The five chapters under the general title, "Russia's Enduring Needs," are of great value, and of special interest is the one relating to "The Liberated Influence of Woman."

IN UPPER CANADA

The Forging Of The Pikes. By Anison North. George H. Doran Company.

This new novel is a romance of the political struggles which took place in Upper Canada some eighty years ago, and its principal appeal will be to those who have an intimate acquaintance with the details of Canadian history and the personalities of the Canadian politicians who were of importance during the opening years of the reign of Queen Victoria. The story part of the book is an entirely secondary affair, conventional and not particularly interesting. To the average American reader the best of the tale will be the picture it gives of Canadian life at the time, life as it was led both in the remote country districts and in the city of Toronto.

The story is told by a young man named Alan, whose love affair with pretty Barbara Deveril, known as Barry, is interwoven with politics to form the thread of the plot. Alan's father and mother lived on a farm at the edge of the woods, not far from a small village, where the roads were very bad and communication difficult. But Alan had an uncle who kept an apothecary's shop in Toronto, and after a time Alan went to help him and to live with him and his family. The course of true love did not run smooth, and Alan's affiliations with those whom some called reformers and others rebels helped to make things difficult and complicated, but of course it all came out right in the end. There is more than the suggestion of a mystery concerning Barbara, which is never solved, and some references to Indian songs and traditions.

POLLY

Storm Country Polly. By Grace Miller White. Little, Brown and Co.

Grace Miller White, whose previous novel, "Tess of the Storm Country," proved so popular, has written another story about the same section of the country called "Storm Country Polly." A more apt title for the book would have been "Storm Country Pollyanna," for the leading figure in the novel is so good that it almost hurts to think of her. She is saccharinity brought to its absolute quintessence of strength. The storm country is that portion of New York State near Ithaca and Lake Cayuga, and this special tale concerns the attempted ousting of a settlement of squatters from the lake shore. All the old familiar ingredients of the time-honored popular novel-scheme are injected into the story, including a secret marriage and a rich but honest gallant falling desperately in love with the raggedy but beautiful Polly. The types are drawn distinctly; one may tell that Oscar Bennett is a villain a mile away, for instance. In spite of the archaic construction and material of the story, it manages to sustain a certain amount of interest. Its fate will probably be a motion picture scenario of the Mary Pickford variety. She would play the role of Polly to perfection.

ENGLISH COUNTRYSIDE

Given an English curate who says "Well, I'm damned!" when he finds himself in a railway compartment with two ladies who object to his smoking a pipe there, who is always ready to flirt breezily and shamelessly with any girl who comes his way and who permits himself to be taken into the bosom of a respectable country family, the members of which suppose him to be somebody else, and there should be material for a modern novel eminently suited to "Summer reading." That is the kind of light, irresponsible, amusing fare that is provided here. It is the sort of thing that one may read or fall asleep over, as it may happen, with no harm done either way.

Bob Trusdale is the curate, and when he is picked up at the railway station at Underwood by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Upton, who think he is their nephew, Bob, whom they have never seen, he accepts the situation as soon as he finds out there has been a mistake and follows the adventure without scruple. He has come there to meet a certain Colonel Massey, whom he has never seen, intending to enjoy a month's holiday from his clerical duties with the Colonel's agreeable family. But it is all the same to Bob, and when he learns that the Bob whose place he has taken is also a clergyman and has come from Vancouver, he looks at Nora, the pretty girl whom he meets in the Upton house, and decides she is smart enough to be dangerous, and also makes up his mind he will not marry Hilda Hutton, the other girl in the story, who has been picked out for him by some of his elders.

The tale rollicks through its 300 pages with so many twists and turns into byways of adventures that it is difficult to follow coherently. Let it suffice that Bob Truesdale eventually decides he will marry Hilda, and then, there being nothing more to talk about, the book ends. There is an interesting side glance at churchly affairs as they are conducted in England, with dignified but good-natured middle-aged vicars, curates who are very natural sport-loving young Englishmen when not actually engaged in clerical duties, and an atmosphere of cheerful sociability and a lack of pious austerity which seems quite compatible with the reverent observance of canonical duties. Then there are other characters of a distinctly British type, including a cobbler and so forth, and the whole is permeated with the soft climate of the English countryside and the leisureliness which only British writers ever acquire to perfection.

RICHARD CHATTERTON

Richard Chatterton, V. C. By Ruby M. Ayres. New York: W. J. Watt and Co. $1.75. (Gold).

This is a war story built on a familiar model. Richard Chatterton is an idling Englishman who is engaged in a perfunctory manner to a rich heiress whose father had purchased Burvale, the estate which for years had belonged to the Chattertons. His chief reason for being engaged to Sonia is that he wants to get this estate back. The war does not interest Chatterton in the least; not only does he not enlist himself, but he forbids his man, Carter, to join the colors. Sonia, however, wants him to go to war; she realises that Chatterton is selfish and a good deal of a coward. She breaks her engagement to Chatterton and permits herself to become engaged to Montague, a man who is kept from enlistment by an accident to his leg.

There is the customary denouement. Chatterton, in a rage, goes to war, and gets the V. C. Montague turns out to be a crass coward. It is all symmetrical enough. Sonia keeps putting off the wedding to Montague from time to time; suspense is not achieved by this device, because the reader knows all the time that the end of the story will find Sonia in Chatterton's arms. The reader is not even greatly concerned when Chatterton is reported dead; he does not have to be especially canny to guess that the dead will come to life. The triteness of the story is unrelieved by any felicity of style; this is the sort of novel dashed off in a hurry to meet an uncritical demand.

IN ARIZONA

Glory Rides The Range. By Ethel and James Dorrance. New York: The Macaulay Company. $2.75. (Gold).

The leading performers in this stirring tale of Arizona are Gloriana Frazer and her horse "Connie."

"A girl and a horse—you'd never have thought they could bear so many points of resemblance. "Both were rangy in build, yet taut of muscle; both young, as youth compares in horse and human; both trained to the limit of capability and endurance; even stronger in tone than the mane, backward flung by the wind, was the copper braid which coroneted the head under the wide-brimmed felt hat."

Gloriana's father was Blaze Frazer, owner of a horse ranch near the "Solemncholy Desert." Frazer's delicate and refined wife had mysteriously disappeared some years before the story opens. Between the father and daughter the strongest affection existed. Frazer receives a penciled letter post-marked Nogales, Mexico telling him that there is a woman there who "sometime cry for Blaze and Glory and says her name is Frazer." The writer further requests Frazer to come for the woman and bring with him $5,000 gold for "expenses." Frazer raises the money and starts for Mexico in the hope of finding his wife; before leaving he leases the ranch to one Timothy Rudd and arranges for the girl to live with a friend during his absence. Gloriana, however, decides otherwise; Rudd was a bad character and, refusing to recognise the validity of the lease, she assumes charge of the ranch herself. The exciting incidents which followed her decision furnish the theme of this story. As there are two young men in the picture, Philip Strong, son of a neighboring rancher, and Seth Gilson of the United States Geological Survey, the reader may safely assume that there is no lack of romance in the book. In the end Gloriana is in her mother's arms and a prospective husband is hovering near by.

Hapsburgs Who May Return To Power In Hungary

The Archduke Joseph of Hapsburg, his wife and daughter, photographed on the grounds of their palace near Budapest. The Archduke is being prominently mentioned as ruler of Hungary in the event of a return of the monarchy.

The Archduke, who as a field marshal commanded a wing of the Austrian army against the Russians and Rumanians during the war, is still very popular in Hungary. He is much opposed to the Austrian Dittos, and since the election of Admiral Horthy as Regent of Hungary, has busied himself in politics.

British Uniforms For German Police

Government Violently Assailed For Placing Order Outside The Country

Berlin, May 23.—Germany's "Green Boys," as the members of the military police force are popularly called, in reference to the color of their uniforms, are going to wear English cloth, the Government having placed an order for 700,000 meters, to the value of about 1,500,000 marks, with a British textile firm.

This fact was disclosed by the Vossische Zeitung, which accompanied the announcement with a violent denunciation of what it called "this absolutely incomprehensible circumstance." Later the Home Office issued a defense in which it stated pathetically:

"For nearly a year our officials have been trying to get clothing for the military police. They begged, implored, threatened and applied everywhere—to State and war clothing departments and textile factories—all in vain. Many policemen are going about in rags, and hundreds of others are doing duty in civilian clothing. After all these fruitless attempts, we had to act, therefore, if the whole organisation for security were not to be endangered."

Not, after the contract has been closed, all sorts of people are coming forward and saying that they could have provided the material at a lower price than the English offer, and the Pan German press is in a rage. The Post, for instance, describing the transaction as a crime against German industry and a scandal that cries to heaven. A piquant detail is that the cloth coming from England is khaki and will have to be dyed in Germany to the particular shade of green which the Government considers goes the best with the Prussian complexion.

CHIN DEPARTING

The belief is growing that Chin Yung-peng will not enter the new Cabinet but will shortly visit Shanhaikwan prior to going abroad to study international affairs.

General Han Shu-tseng after a holiday in the western hills will settle down to the compilation of a Chinese dictionary and also the supervision of the Chengchih University, which he established.

Another sharp admonition has been given to General Chang Ching-yao owing to his delay in proceeding to Peking. He has been ordered to Peking immediately.

General Ni Shih-chung arrived at Peitaiho yesterday. He expressed a desire to see General Chang Tso-lin.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in civilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Health, Beauty And The Home

The Doctor Says

By Brice Belden M.D.

The Well-Known Physician and Writer.

WHAT besides the X-ray will reveal dilation of the stomach? Will exercise help? Can belts be dispensed with? How about electricity?—J. C. A.

The other methods employed in the diagnosis of dilation of the stomach are inspection, by which undue prominence, or even outlines of the enlarged stomach, sometimes showing wave-like motions of the organ, may be observed; palpation, by which the boundaries of the organ, or obstructing tumors, may be felt with the hands; percussion, by which tapping with the fingers may reveal a dull area around the navel when the patient is erect, but not when lying down or after the complete evacuation of the stomach; auscultation, by which are detected splashing sounds before breakfast or seven hours after what is known as a Riegel test-meal; mensuration, by which distance from the teeth to that part of the stomach reached by a sound is found to be 28 inches instead of 24; gastrodiaphany, by which we study the stomach through the abdominal wall, in a dark room, the interior of the stomach being brightly illuminated by means of an electric lamp and cord swallowed by the patient; and examination of the stomach contents the morning after a simple supper (should be empty). Regarding exercise, abdominal massage usually does good. As to belts, mechanical support is practically always indispensable. Faradic electricity promotes the muscular tone of the stomach walls.

I SUFFER from stiffness of the knees, interfering with walking. My diet is eggs, bread and milk. Do not use alcohol, but smoke a little. Age seventy. Can anything be done?—H. T. G.

Your trouble is in part due to changes incidental to your age. Your diet could be varied a little more, as by the addition of vegetables and fruit, if necessary reducing the quantities of the foods mentioned by you. Be sure to take sufficient water. The best internal medication would be iodide of potash, as follows:

Saturated solution of iodide of potash.....1 ounce
Take three drops an hour before meals, in milk or water, increasing the dose daily by one drop until ten drops are being taken three times a day.

MY husband suffers frequently from cramps in the extremities, after which he is quite weak. Will you kindly tell me what you think is the cause of these attacks, and the proper remedy?—H. E.

It is probable that your husband suffers from a rather rare disease known as tetany (not tetanus, or lockjaw). It is believed to be due to lack of calcium in the blood. Cases occur in which dilation of the stomach, Bright's disease or alcoholism seems to play a part. The patient should be examined to determine the presence or absence of such contributory conditions and treatment applied accordingly. If the case is really one of true tetany fifteen grains of the lactate of calcium should be taken four times a day.

WHY is it some people have pneumonia in one lung and others in both lungs? Has neglect or wrong treatment anything to do with the spread from one lung to the other? Is there any preventative of pneumonia?—C.

The most frequent seat of pneumonia is the lower lobe of th eright lung, probably because the opening of the right bronchus (one of the two divisions into which the lower end of the windpipe splits to enter the lungs) is larger than that of the left bronchus, thus being more liable to receive germs. Moreover, the right bronchus is shorter and wider than the left, which of course also makes access to the right lung easy for the bacteria. When a patient has double pneumonia it is because of the invasion of both lungs by the pneumococci, as the germs causing this disease are called, and not because of neglect or wrong treatment. At the same time it is conceivable that gross neglect or mistreatment might lower the resisting power of a patient to a point where infection otherwise limited might prove overwhelming. The prevention of pneumonia consists in maintaining the general health at the highest point, breathing air warmed by passage through the nose (in mouth breathing the lungs are chilled), the observance of all hygienic laws, including above all things avoidance of alcohol, the immediate destruction of pneumonia sputum and the repression of spitting in public places. The patient who has recovered from pneumonia may be a carrier of the germ for a long time, and if he spits about town his sputum, after drying is taken up by flying dust, the germs in it thus reaching and infecting others.

Especially Posed by MISS GRACE DARLING at CAMPBELL STUDIO

HOW shall I use your preparation for keeping the hair dry and curly?—MISS O. H.

Wash the hair thoroughly with a good shampoo of castile soap and warm water. Then with a soft sponge apply the mixture recommended at least once a week, wetting the roots of the hair and massaging the scalp with particular care. For the benefit of those who did not see this formula it is given below:

Bay rum	1 quart
Alcohol	½ pint
Water	½ pint
Tincture of cantharides	½ oz.
Carbonate of ammonia	¼ oz.
Carbonate of potash	½ oz.

Afterward apply this mixture to keep the hair in curl:

Tragacanth	1½ drams
Rose water	1½ pints
Oil of almonds	¼ dram

SOME poets say that freckles are tiny imprints of the sun's kisses. I think they look perfectly horrid, especially when you have such a liberal crop as I have. Can they be removed?—L. VAN N.

A good old-fashioned remedy is the daily buttermilk bath for the face. If this is not effective, try the following:

Lemon juice	1 oz.
Rum	½ fluid ounce

The fingers should be moistened with this lotion and rubbed upon the freckled portions of the skin at night. Next morning rinse the face and arms in warm water.

I HAVE a corn that no matter how hard I try cannot be permanently removed. What would you advise?—K. C.

For an obstinate case like yours, soak your foot from fifteen to twenty minutes in warm water, softened by a little benzoin, and then apply the following lotion with a camel's hair brush:

Collodion	4 grams
Ether (65 per cent)	2 grams
Alcohol (95 per cent)	1 gram
Tincture of Cannabis Indica	¼ gram
Salicylic acid	½ gram

I AM getting a double chin. Will you tell me what to do?—E. H. V.

You are to be pitied, but you need not be inconsolable. Try the following astringent and massage the skin underneath the chin gently upward, using the tips of the fingers:

Camphor water	3 oz.
Alcohol	1 oz.

Resting for Beauty's Sake

By Lina Cavalieri

The Most Famous Living Beauty

ARE you overworked, tired and irritable, and do you wake up in the morning with a frown instead of a smile? Then you must learn to take a complete rest during some part of the day.

We can't all of us have a long Summer vacation, and spend slow, aimless days in the mountains or watching the waves pounding on the shore as we loll easefully on the sands. But we can shut our doors on the busy world outside, relax our tense nerves and bid all our worries and cares begone—for a little while, at least. If we value our looks, we must, because rest is the only way to restore a woman's natural vivacity and charm.

If you are one of those thin, overburdened women who keep your nerves stretched taut all day and then take your troubles to bed with you, I beg of you, stop! Or you will become even more thin and angular as the days go by.

The twin vices of Hurry and Worry constitute a regular Old Man of the Sea to the average American woman. And these truly insidious foes of a woman's life form a most serious menace to her health, and therefore, to her beauty. No woman can expect to be really beautiful unless she takes some form of rest cure every day. All unnecessary rush and excitement must be avoided as if they were the plague.

I have yet to meet that woman who ever gained the smallest advantage or prevented any catastrophe by overwork or by worrying upon it, so cast it from you bravely.

Go into the silence and rest your weary body. Think upon good and healthful things—and who among us, thank God! has not some wee morsel of beauty we can hug to our souls?

Things You Ought to Know

Starching the Woodwork.

IN cleaning painted woodwork or whitewashed walls, wash down first with ordinary starch to remove all smoke and grimy spots.

Charcoal to Sweeten Meat.

IF MEAT is in danger of spoiling lay small pieces of charcoal on or near it. This will help to keep it fresh and sweet.

Taking Out Pecan Nuts Whole.

SOAK the nuts over night in cold water. This causes them to expand so that when cracked the meats may readily be removed whole.

Rhubarb and Prune Pie.

TO MAKE a delicious pie, try a combination of rhubarb and prunes. The prunes neutralize the acidity of the rhubarb and give it a nice flavor.

To String Beads.

IF THE needle is dipped into water the moisture will cause the beads to stick together and string easily.

Second Announcement

The fact that this Administration has carried out the instructions of the Ministry of Communications and the terms of the agreement entered into by the Yu Fong S.S. Co. with the Ministry of Communications that the management of the "Hwah" line of steamers was to be transferred to the said Company has been already advertised in the local papers.

Adverting to the statement published today in the Chinese newspapers by the Yu Fong s.s. Co. to the effect that Accounts incurred in 1917 and 1918 have also been handed over to them we must point out that the said Accounts consist of statements of accounts with vouchers for money received from the American Shipping Board on account of the s.s. "Hwah Jah" etc.

These accounts and vouchers were handed over to them for reference in order to enable them to deal with the American Shipping Board and to make up final report to the Ministry of Communications.

It is surprising to note that the Yu Fong S.S. Co. has inadvertently taken the matter to be a request for payment of old outstanding debts.

We hold receipt from the Yu Fong S.S. Co. for all documents regarding the transfer and the management of the "Hwah" line of steamers. These documents have never been taken back by us.

The Yu Fong S.S. Co. commencing from the 1st day of July, 1920, is therefore responsible for the management and accounts of the "Hwah" line of steamers.

Besides wiring the above facts to the Ministry of Communications, the public is hereby again notified.

NOTICE

Referring to the fact that this Company has been instructed by the Ministry of Communications to take charge of the expenses connected with the personnel, repairs, and insurance of the "Hwah" line of steamers, this Company is unable to assume charge of the above mentioned matters as previously announced, because the Chinese Government Steamship Administration has not acted in accordance with the terms of the agreement entered into and the orders of the said Ministry. Consequently we returned all transferred documents to the said Administration on the 30th of June, 1920. These documents have been refused acceptance by Commissioner Sah of the said Administration.

Inasmuch as this appointment to take over charge of matter aforesaid was received directly from the Ministry of Communications, this Company does not recognise any third party having authority in this; and has accordingly reported the case to the said Ministry for instructions before further action. We therefore beg to announce to the public once again that meanwhile this Company will bear no responsibility whatever for expenses relating to the aforesaid personnel, repairs and insurance of the above mentioned vessels.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand's Exchange Circular for week ending Wednesday, July 7, states:

Exchange:—The London price of silver after slight fluctuations is down to 51½ and 50¾ for "spot" and "Forward" respectively, i.e. 1d. and ⅝ lower than last week for these deliveries. Our rate for T.T. on London at 5/0 is also 1d. down. Very little business has been passing and the Market closes easy with the Banks showing an inclination to buy the little export paper offering at under quotations. In view of tight money in New York G.$ are particularly weak.

Local stocks of silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 36,320,000 a decline of Tls. 610,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $19,750,000 a rise of $730,000.

Hongkong Market

Our last circular was dated 25th ultimo on which date our Settlement took place and passed off satisfactorily.

Our market continues very dull owing to the continuance of tight money and the very high rates of interest which are still being charged, and until this situation eases off a bit we do not see any hope of brisker business.

Information was telegraphed here from Shanghai on the 30th June that the June Settlement had passed off satisfactorily, but from previous experience the word satisfactorily would appear to be capable of a fairly liberal translation, on the 29th ultimo there was every indication of a very tight squeeze being in operation.

Cable delays are responsible for very meagre information from London.

The following are the chief alterations since last week:

Hongkong Banks.—Have been dealt in at $670 and more shares could be placed at the rate.

Unions.—Have changed hands at $195 and $200.

Docks.—Are a quiet market. Buyers offering $148 and sellers $152.

Shanghai Docks.—Have advanced; Tls. 132 is offered for cash.

China Sugars.—Have been dealt in to a fair extent at $232 and $234 for cash, $239 for August and $241 for September.

Indo Chinas.—Have had a sensational rise in London, the rate coming through at £50., being a rise of £14.10.0., since last week, the equivalent of which, at today's rate is $272, but this quotation applies only to London Register shares. There are various rumors current to account for this rise, but all of them lack confirmation officially.

Exchange.—The demand selling rate on London is 3/8¼ and the T.T. selling rate on Shanghai is 72.

Harmony Prevails In The Sarre Basin

League Of Nations' Commission Assures Inhabitants Of A Square Deal

New York, May 26.—Accounts of conditions and happenings in recent issues of German newspapers seem to indicate that, after the first outburst of resentment by the German inhabitants against the French occupying troops, following the setting up of the regime prescribed by the Peace Treaty, long steps toward reconciliation have been taken as the result of conferences between representatives of the people and the members of the Governing Commission, headed by V. Rault, and peace and industry reign in the rich mining district which for fifteen years is to help recompense France for her industrial losses due to the war.

At the official reception following the formal entry of the Governing Commission, President Rault assured the public officials and employes present that in the future there would be no more officials subject to the Prussian, Bavarian or German Governments, but only officials of "a free country under the supervision of the League of Nations." These officials would be chosen from among the Sarre population as far as possible. Especially was the administration of justice to be left to natives and the courts would be unhampered. President Rault emphasised the maintenance of religious freedom and also the intention of the Governing Commission to look after the material well being of the inhabitants. Mayor A. Klein of Saarbrucken pointed out the menace to the welfare of the Sarre district caused by the tariff wall on the eastern border and the fall of exchange in the west, and President Rault assured him that the commission would do everything in its power to relieve the situation.

In the afternoon of March 11, immediately upon his return from Paris, President Rault received a delegation representing the Social Democratic, Independent Socialist, Democratic and Clerical parties of the Sarre and spent four hours discussing the wishes of the inhabitants, this discussion revealing what the correspondent of the Kolnische Zeitung called "a happy unity of purpose among the parties." Herr von Boch, the Sarreland member of the Governing Commission, took a leading part in the discussion, in the course of which President Rault declared his intention of acceding to the wishes of the people, and laid down a program including the following points:

Immediate ending of military rule, the troops only to stay a while longer as police until the civil administration could be set up and a body of Sarreland police created. Quick action toward insuring the food supply, including if possible fourteen-day lifting of the duties on necessities and permanent free trade in Sarre products adapted for exchange for German foodstuffs. The passport system to be dropped within the Sarre district and general travel across the border to be made easier. No more Sarrelanders to be deported and those already deported to be readmitted upon examination of each case. Censorship on letters to be stopped and freedom of the press to be restored shortly. Freedom of assemblage and organisation to be granted as soon as the commission was convinced there would be no abuse of such liberty. Local election within three months.

This program embraced practically all the demands voiced by the people at five big mass meetings held at about the same time the conference was on.

Am I Not Democratic Enough? Asks Charles

Emperor Replies To Request For Abdication—Wants To 'Help My People'

Budapest, May 27 (Associated Press).—Former Emperor Charles, when asked recently to announce his formal abdication, is reported to have replied to Field Marshal von Koevess, who made the request, as follows:

"Why am I not democratic enough? Do I not listen to all parties and shake hands with all comers? I wish to help my people."

One of the arguments put forth against the return of the former Emperor to the throne is that it would mean the invasion of the country by hundreds of Archdukes and Archduchesses and would make necessary subsidies from an "empty treasury."

Prince Rene of Parma, brother of former Empress Zita, who was extradited when Count Karolyi was President of Hungary, under suspicion of working in the interest of former Emperor Charles, has returned to Budapest and is reported to be living quietly. His enemies, however, allege that he is again actively pro-Charles.

Cox And Harding

IT'S a beautiful story we have for you this morning, fellow Americans. No matter how the election goes in the United States, the country is bound to be saved. Let us state the matter calmly and with becoming modesty, by putting it in large black type:

YOU ARE ABOUT TO HAVE AN EDITOR FOR PRESIDENT

You have tried statesmen, soldiers, college presidents, and lawyers—and to what end? You have elected about 27 presidents in all. And what have they accomplished? Where have we landed?

We have had floods, famines, pestilences, slavery, freedom, war, social unrest, Bolshevism, I. W. Wism, woman's suffrage, love, courtship, marriage, families and divorce, prohibition, immigration, syncopation and vaccination. These, and others, until it is something to be wondered at as one of the marvels of the race that there is any population left to wonder at anything.

There are, happily, a few people left in the country, and as only the fittest survive, they have gathered in their conventions, consulted their oracles and in their wisdom have decided that there is only one safe path out of the morass in which the statesmen, professors, soldiers and lawyers have landed them.

To be sure they had been offered a chance to elect an editor President once before. Right after the Civil War the Liberal Republicans nominated Horace Greeley for President. He was editor of the New York Tribune and an enemy of Gen. Grant who was the regular Republican nominee. Everything looked favorable for Greeley until the Democrats indorsed him. This hurt him, both North and South, and he was beaten.

But the people of the United States are taking no chances this year. They realise that this is no time for paltering. Therefore when everything began to look black at Chicago, the Republicans turned as one man to an editor. They turned their backs on the soldiers, statesmen and food dictators and nominated Warren G. Harding, son of a country doctor, editor of a small daily newspaper in Ohio.

And the Democrats, meeting almost a month later at San Francisco, after deadlocking themselves for over a week, hit on a similar solution of the problem of how to save the country. They chose James M. Cox, son of an Ohio farmer, editor of two small daily newspapers in Ohio. Two to one on Cox!

It is a good thing, of course, that the two great parties, have, in the country's extremity, known in what direction to turn for succor. We cannot but applaud their decision. We have already thought that the country's safety rested with its editors.

These two men, one of whom is to be President, were born not very far apart, either in year's or miles and in the same State. One represents Ohio in the United States Senate and the other is Governor of Ohio. Both are and have been editors all their working days. One has been a life-long Republican, the other a life-long Democrat. In politics they are far apart but in Americanism they are one. The country will express its choice next November, on the principles at issue as set forth in the party platforms. But in any case it is committed to an Editor. So here's to the red black and blue pencil. Long may it wave!

Woman Boss Adds Zest To Campaign

New York Experiment In Sending Mrs. Colbert To Democratic Convention Attracts Nationwide Attention

(New York Sun-Herald)

Mrs. Elizabeth V. Colbert, district leader in Albany under the system adopted by the county Democratic organisation up there, is going to the National Democratic Convention at San Francisco as an alternate. She will go as the guest of the Democratic women of her county.

While this alternate may not prove persona grata to ex-Boss McCabe, the success of the movement to send her is a gratifying thing to women generally, almost irrespective of party lines. Her winning out over all kinds of obstacles has been of the intensive sort that dims, in a way, ordinary political prejudice.

IN THE VAN OF PROGRESS

In adopting the equal representation of men and women in the county committees the Democratic organisation at least exhibits a desire to get in the van of progress, and by selecting Mrs. Colbert the chiefs have placed at the head of the new movement a woman whose political sagacity frequently has been demonstrated, whose sympathy with women's political aspirations is deep and whose ability, judged by what she has done for her sisters, has been established. The eager interest displayed in her political career up to now by other women throughout the country will be undoubtedly intensified in watching what she does in the National Convention.

Mrs. Colbert is popular in her own State; she was the great majority choice of up-State women and many New York city women as a member of the "big four" delegation, and her strength was shown in the unofficial convention when she decisively defeated every other aspirant for this honor. There was wide sorrow when she withdrew to keep party harmony, but this is likely to be assuaged by the recent developments.

The experiment of a "woman boss" is bound to attract country-wide attention. It remains to be seen whether other organisations will adopt the policy of Albany Democrats and give women the right of a voice in the party measures which they will be called upon to support.

Along with this enlarging of woman's political activity goes the deeper stressed question, What will women do with their leadership? How they will vote is not half so important. In the neighborhood of the Capitol they are saying that the answer to the query is that women leaders will add zest and enthusiasm to any old campaign, but they are giving this answer basing it on the figure of Mrs. Colbert, leader of Albany county Democratic women, who has introduced the "woman boss" to doubting politicians.

ABILITY OF SEX

A real asset of the woman political boss is the exact knowledge of her constituency. This Mrs. Colbert possesses, and she has besides a full measure of the ability foundatoin work. The women district leaders have been fore she has aroused the admiration of fellow politicians by her foundation work. The women district leaders have been chosen from the rank and file of women voters and are women who have families and homes, with the interests of their communities at heart, and for these they are prepared to oppose any political shortsightedness in the way of schools and other domestic progress.

Women, says Mrs. Colbert, have their own peculiar political difficulties. The men leaders do not always understand these difficulties and many men leaders would be slow to sympathise with them for lack, first, of knowledge, and second, of understanding. Men leaders do not always take pains to find out what the women of their districts want. But the aggressive and progressive woman wishes to be something more than a mere enrolled voter. Mrs. Colbert reports that from their active participation in affairs she is able to find out exactly an accurate relation of actual conditions.

It would seem that these things would be patent to nobody more clearly than to clever politicians, but the latter err sometimes in not treating women and their wishes seriously. They did indeed ask the question: What will women do with the vote? And many of the leaders thought the action of the new voters would prove a boomerang. A good many politicians pondered this question heavily even while professing to favor suffrage. Those who did not favor it shook in their political shoes after suffrage was really here.

Now the question has changed to: "What will the women do with their leadership?" Mrs. Colbert's answer to this, backed by accomplishments, is that women leaders will add so much new life and enthusiasm to a campaign while clearing up the issues and uplifting them or clarifying them, that both parties will wonder how they got along without them for so many years. Women, she adds, may have felt ill at ease when they first stepped into the arena of active politics, but that has gone with familiarity.

MRS. COLBERT'S RECORD

This new example of progress is an Albanian of three generations. Her husband is a physician, and she has two sons with whom she is on romping terms; one month every summer she spends with them hunting, fishing and larking in the Adirondacks.

Mrs. Colbert was one of the founders of the first Equal Suffrage Club of Albany and saw it through its tea, toast and gossip days to times and duties more serious. She has been an Assembly district leader in the New York State Woman Suffrage party since its formation and leader of the Second Assembly district of Albany county for six years.

In order to justify her statement that her interest in politics was not merely a theory she became the first woman in Albany county to seek elective office, selecting her own district to campaign for a seat in the State Legislature. In this contest Mrs. Colbert had practically no assistance from the organisation. The district was Republican, but she thought that where a man was sure to fail (that is, a Democrat) a woman of the same party might win. The time was not ripe, however, and the antagonism of Boss McCabe did not serve to advance it.

Meanwhile Mrs. Colbert aspired to organise the Democratic women of Albany into an effective political study club without encouragement from the boss and even with some covert opposition. Quietly she continued to organise until she had a committee in every election district of Albany. These she threw to the support of Capt. Reynolds King Townsend, who ran for Mayor in 1919. Her help did not elect him, it is true, but it cut down perceptibly his opponent's majority. This candidate was a strong anti-McCabe man and his forces combined with Mrs. Colbert's resulted in the overthrow of McCabe.

With the present county leader, Edwin Corning, the new "woman boss" is strong. She also enjoys the pleasantest political relations with Chairman Farley of the State committee.

A BORN POLITICIAN

When Mrs. Colbert retired as suffrage leader she was the oldest in point of service Assembly district leader in the women's party; she is now chairman of the League of Women Voters. She is astute, tactful and a born politician. Throughout the dark days of discouragement for the suffragists she never lost heart and she persuaded many a reactionary legislator to look at things in her light. Her bland and easy manner was of a description to disarm mere prejudice and when it came to argument there were few opposed to suffrage who could marshal arguments as good as hers for it.

During the final debates on suffrage before the successive legislative bodies Mrs. Colbert haunted the Capitol and during the final year when victory was won she accompanied Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw to all the suffragist conventions and to all State and National conventions where the innovation was being debated. At all times and seasons and in every place, including street meetings, Mrs. Colbert was among the hardest workers.

Her work since has increased rather than diminished; she is on the parliamentary law committee of the Women's Club of Albany, on the program committee of the non-partisan City Club, chairman of the program committee of the Mothers' Club, which conducts the public playground day nurseries and milk stations of Albany, and she is a member of the Knickerbocker Civic League of New York, member of the executive board of the Committee of 1,000 Democratic Women, vice-president of Women Democrats of Albany, any these are but a sample of her activities.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

In speaking of her future as "woman boss" Mrs. Colbert has said:

"Women in politics act with circumspection and good manners. They will never lose their delicacy, no matter what stress they may work under in their new field. As district leader I mean to aid women to keep as far as possible in their own environment, but the time must come when they will have to get out and stand shoulder to shoulder alongside of men voters.

"The logical answer to the distinctive political needs of women is women representatives in political organisations. Women will be found to act with wisdom and acumen, and I believe that my sex will introduce political sense into the parties. It was with some temerity that women stepped into the lively and very real whirl of politics, but all the evils predicted by our opponents have already been shown to be silly dreams.

"In Albany we have been so successful in organising city women that we are going right through the country as soon as weather will permit of town meetings being held in the open air. The women have shown far beyond all expectation that they have a wise political sense, that they know how to exercise the franchise for the good of the people and they have vindicated all the claims and kept all the promises that they made while they were still begging for the franchise.

"It is true that some of these promises seemed difficult to keep. They have not proved to be so. The women of Albany and of the State and of the nation are confident they can do everything they promised to do and even more."

The "woman political boss" idea was developed when the Democratic county organisation decided in conference that the old system of district representation by men alone was inadequate to these modern days, and they superseded it by the bi-representation system. It was thought that it would take some time to organise the women from whom the district leaders of their sex were to come. But this was an error. As soon as the new system went into effect the women district leaders were ready, Mrs. Elizabeth V. Colbert, "the woman boss," had attended to that.

The Presidential Election. A Comedy In Two Scenes.

Scene 1. Somewhere in San Francisco.

Brandeis: What means this shouting? I do fear the delegates choose Cox for President.

Bryan: Ay, do you fear it? Then must I think you would not have it so.

Brandeis: I would not, Bryan, yet I know him well.

Bryan: I cannot tell what you or other men think of this life, but for my single self I would as lief not be as live to be in awe of such a thing as I myself. I was born free as Cox, so were you, we both have fed as well.

Brandeis: Ay, there is our mistake. Thou hast been too outspoken. True we have fed as well, but have we drunk as well?

Bryan: Aye, there's the rub. Methought that like the weather he was much too wet, and that in Cuba he might reign well.

Brandeis: Another general shout. I do believe that these applauses are for some new honors heaped on Cox.

Bryan: Tut, tut, why man he will bestride the narrow world like a colossus and we petty men will walk under his legs and peep about to find ourselves dishonorable graves.

Brandeis: My noble friend chew you upon this, that I would rather be a villager than live under these hard conditions.

Bryan: 'Tis well, a horse! Thou shalt be my dark horse.

Brandeis: More shouting.

Scene 2.

At the White House.

Wilson: I wrote no note, I said no word that might give great offense and yet my son, my son, why wer't thou not the chosen?

McAdoo: They thought me every inch a prince, a crown prince, and so would none of me.

Wilson: 'Tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true.

McAdoo: The League of Nations is not what you would.

Wilson: Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown; uneasy too the head that lies in a White House. Begone sweet fame and let me rest.

Despite our advanced civilisation John Chinaman can see a good deal to laugh at in his Western visitors. Here is an example of his logic:

Near Shanghai an English sailor on his way to the Bubbling Well Cemetery to lay a wreath on the grave of a comrade met a native with a pot of rice.

"Hello, John!" he hailed. "Where are you going with that?"

"I takee put on glave—glave of my flien," said the Chinaman.

Ho, Ho! laughed the sailor. "And when do you expect your friend to come up and eat it?"

"All time samee your flien come up and smellee your flowers," replied John.

I was hardly awake this morning when a chit was brought from one of the readers of "Maskee." This is what he says:

Dear Domino: How do they do it?

"And hand in hand our ships and men"

By the way you are Irish, aren't you? R. I

Yes, I am Irish, and it looks like a bull, doesn't it? As a matter of fact we refer to a ship as a She; a she is a lady. And why shouldn't we join hands with a she or a lady. We often ask for their hands, and—and, and—Well, that's all, R. T.

Yes we have to buy our "Chocs" early, because we mustn't buy "Choco-late."

—Era.

I am going to write about the weather so will everyone kindly keep their seats and don't get excited.

"How long has it been raining?" I asked one of the oldest members of the longest bar in the world. "I can't say," he said, "I haven't lived here all my life." "But tell me," I said, searching for truth, "Does it always rain here?" Oh Lor no," he said, "sometimes it snows as well."

And that reminds me—

A deaf fellow was asked by a friend "How is the wife?" Thinking that it was the usual question about the weather he said "Damp, dirty and disagreeable with no sign of a change."

Jeanne Hachette, Warrior Maid, Second Only To Jeanne D'Arc

The Maid of Orleans was the first and greatest warrior maid of France, but she was not the only one. There was the Maid of Beauvais, Jeanne Fourquet, surnamed Hachette—Jeanne of the Little Hatchet. Thrilled and impressed in childhood with the story of Jeanne d'Arc, the peasant heroine, this second Jeanne, far more gently born and bred, a daughter of the comfortable bourgeoisie, unacquainted with hardship, rose instantly to the opportunity when her native city was imperilled.

Charles the Bold, with a great army of Burgundians, had arrived before Beauvais, and although the citizens had been promised reenforcements none had yet arrived. There was doubt, hesitation and confusion. The young Jeanne, catching up the little hatchet, which was the nearest weapon to her hand hastily offered herself and it at the shrine of Sainte Angadresme, the patron saint of the city, and ran into the tumultuous streets crying, "To arms!"

Perhaps because the memory of that other Jeanne was still fresh, perhaps because of her own flaming fervor, she was heard, heeded and followed. She roused not only the men but the women and children to fight, and that not in a single surge of enthusiasm but repeatedly throughout the siege. For the Burgundians, repulsed in their first onslaught were by no means defeated. They "dug themselves in," as we should put it, before the walls; indeed, the ancient narrative has a curiously modern sound except that arrows figure instead of shot and shell. But then, as in the war just ended, there were catapults; and if there was not liquid fire there were boiling water and melted lead.

Again and again Jeanne Hachette rallied the discouraged, led the leaderless and fought beside the fighters. When re-enforcements came the Mayor presented the girl warrior to the veteran captains, who accepted her as an equal. Gracefully and modestly she attributed to their arrival—"You, messieurs, to whom victory has always been faithful"—the coming deliverance. But it was still a long time before deliverance came. Besides the dangers from without there was the danger of treachery within. Once she snatched a paper from the hand of a suspected leader; it was proof of his guilt, and he turned his sword against her and would have slain her had not her cries brought help in time.

But she did not always need to be rescued; she was a hard fighter herself when not caught by surprise. Once, just after having led a party to the rescue of her hard pressed commander, Marechal de Roault, she observed the enemy swarming over the ramparts anew in another direction. She rushed to repel the assault at the moment when the enemy standard bearer was planting his banner upon the walls. She drove him back through the breach, down the slope, into the moat and across it, and on the farther side slew him and captured the flag. It was the end. Everywhere as she returned she heard the welcome shout. "Victory! Victory!"

It was also the end of Jeanne Hachette. History knows her no more; nor is it even known what became of her. Probably, her work done, she lived and died like any other prosperous and pretty young bourgeoisie of Beauvais. But she is not forgotten. Every year, in August, the city remembers her in a pageant.

Radium Becoming A Household Aid

BY DORIS E. FLEISCHMAN

Radium, the rarest element in the world, is rapidly becoming an article of ordinary household use. It is the most valuable metal in the world—one gram, which is one-twenty-eighth of an ounce, costing $120,000—yet it is used on more than one million watches and on innumberable 25 cent indicating tacks. It is so powerful that if any one were to live in the same room with one pound of it the flesh would be torn from his bones. But there is not a pound of it in existence and if there were it would not exist in such form. Yet despite its power and value, children soon will play with its by-products as toys, while their elders use it in a hundred different ways.

There is more than one youngster already who will not go to sleep at night without having his pet bear with radium eyes beside him. And corners of rocking chairs will shine out warningly at night, poison bottles will glow in the dark of the medicine cest, night marksmen will sight their rifles by the aid of it, mariners will sail more safely because of it and the late returning householder will be able to find his keyhole more readily in its light. Motorists, miners, fishermen, theatergoers, hospital orderlies, traveling salesmen and what is generally known as the great public will use this rarest of substances as casually as they wind their watches.

IN MILLS AND MINES

How much commercial progress is to owe to radium can be measured by its rapidly increasing use in factories, mills and other plants. Many mining corporations have adopted radium danger signals and guiding arrows. Radium indicators are not affected by atmospheric conditions and accidents, which would make gas, oil and electric lamps useless. As long as there is darkness radium is visible. And in addition danger of explosion is minimised.

The mariner has already discovered many invaluable uses for radium. Especially is this true in the case of the man at the wheel. Electic lights, oil and gas are disturbed by sudden motions and by the cutting off of currents or breaking of contacts, but when the compass card is illuminated by radium its visiblity is reliable. In the engine room, too, the telegraph control is serviceable on foggy nights and in times of emergency.

But it is the ordinary householder, perhaps, who will find the greatest happiness in conveniences made possible by more common use of the most valuable substance in the world. A minute particle of radium used in a tubful of solution will make thousands of articles visible in the dark. Radium may be used in cellars—raisin cellars, booze celars or just ordinary cellars. Furniture that has a habit of standing just in the path in a dark room can have a little radium tack on it and so signal danger to unwary shins. Press bottons for lights or bells are illuminated with a dab of radium. Telephones can be illuminated and countless other things for which the householder is always groping in the dark.

What the sportsmen will do with radium is especially interesting. Fishermen have found that a radium bait is especially effective. Radium sighted rifles and pistols make it possible to shoot with accuracy in the dark. Motorists have discovered several uses for radium, including the illuminating of gasoline gauges, tire pumps, speedometers and other things. The motor cycle speedometer illuminated with radium is practically the only one that is possible to read at night since a motorcycle does not carry instrument lights. As to airplane instruments, practically all of them during the war were illuminated with radium.

RADIUM USED IN WAR

Radium received its greatest impetus as a commercial and generally useful article during the war. The popularity of radium illuminated watches needs no mentioning. Its usefulness to army surgeons is a chapter in itself. Radium is used in the treatment for cancer, tumors and other diseases. It also is established that the curative property of radium was recognised even before radium itself was known to be the source of the cure. Those great baths of Europe to which people from all over the world flocked to gain relief from all sorts of miseries were in reality radium baths, for it is now known that spring waters contain radium and that to this fact is due a great part of their curative properties.

Predictions as to the future usage of radium border on the fairy tale, for in spite of the fact that it costs more than $3,000,000 an ounce and there is less than a pound of it in the world, the marvellous property of radium makes this small quantity stretch limitlessly in usefulness. For not only is the radium itself used, but the radium emanations possess all the radio activities of radium, although without its permanence.

So great is the power of radium that according to Sir Oliver Lodge "the power emitted during the disappearance of a grain would be enough to raise the temperature of a ton of water from the freezing to the boiling point. But this would take about a year."

He also says "once an hour one out of 30,000,000 atoms goes off with violence," and the speed of this is so great that a particle could travel 3,000 miles in one-quarter of a second. If we could utilise all the energy that is inherent in radium there would probably be no more use for coal, electricity or any of the other heaters or energisers used in this world.

Labor's Living Problems

World's Greatest Brains Need To Fix Just Compensation For Workers

BY DR. TOULOUSE

(Eminent French Sociologist)

(By Universal Service)

Paris, May 27.—A scale of wages sliding automatically according to the rise in the cost of living is the only solution to the labor problem. The fixed scale of wages is the root of most labor troubles, the nature of which is biological rather than economic.

The cause of most strikes is the appalling difference between what a man earns and what it costs to live—the question of wages or salary becomes one of life itself.

A man agrees, today, to work for a certain amount of money. He makes a bargain and is supposed to stick to it. But what will cover his expenses today may be insufficient to provide even nourishment, within a few months. The war has upset values to such an extent that the man whose income does not leave him a large margin in never sure of the morrow.

The cost of living, for instance, has increased 400 percent. In spite of the general cry that wages have gone up, how many people are making four times as much as before the war? Very few. The majority have had their earnings increased 75 percent—others, perhaps, have seen them doubled. But what is a 100 percent increase of salary compared to the 400 percent rise in the cost of living?

Whereas a locomotive does not move unless supplied with the requisite fuel, the human machine, unfortunately, is so constituted that insufficient or inferior food does not cause a sudden breakdown. For a considerable time an underfed man continues his usual work. But his vitality is slowly sapped and gradually the standard of the race is lowered. Tuberculosis and other diseases spread to a dangerous degree.

WHAT DOES LIVING COST

When a workingman, therefore, demands higher pay, it should not be objected that he is asking for two or three times as much as he used to get, but the employer should ask how much it costs him to live today.

Every man has the right not only to live, but to live so that his vitality is not impaired. A certain minimum is necessary to enable him to buy the right kind of food for himself and family, provide proper housing conditions. In the interest of society every man—and by that I mean every wage earner—should make enough to insure a stronger, not a weaker, race.

Perpetual nagging is always a source of trouble. With the present regime of fixed salaries the workingman is obliged to demand continually higher and higher wages. This inevitably creates resentment. The fault is that of the system. What is sufficient today is not enough tomorrow. And besides, in spite of our so-called advancement, the man who sells his work is not situated as the man who sells merchandise. If a storekeeper does not make enough profit he doesn't ask permission to raise his prices.

But the man who sells his work must ask the consumer's—that is, the employer's—authority to increase his price, and whereas the shopkeeper offers no explanation of his actions, the workingman is expected to show in detail why he cannot live on his old salary and is frequently obliged to go on strike to impress his point of view.

The grasping demands of labor which governments and corporations speak of are frequently due to the employers' failure to realise the gap between wages and their power to purchase the necessaries of life.

Instead of pitting themselves against strikes, our great railroad owners, financiers, bankers economists should use their superior knowledge of affairs and finances to work out a scheme for determining a sliding scale of wages that would adjust itself automatically to the rice in the cost of living.

WOULD SOLVE PROBLEM

As the laborer would no longer be in the position of having to demand higher wages, the labor problem with its strikes would practically be solved.

No class of society wishes to destroy the present regime merely for the fun of it. If some people think a renovation necessary, it is precisely because as things are now there is too frequently a biological discrepancy between man's desire, his right to live and his ability to do so like a human being on his salary.

I know the matter of readjusting wages to modern conditions would be difficult. But that is no reason why it should be neglected. On the contrary, it is the obvious duty of the greatest brains in the financial and business worlds to take it up.

This universe is suffering from labor troubles. Social order is seriously threatened unless our upper classes feel their responsibility and make it possible biologically, for the worker to live. The labor question should not be left to agitators.

Why Boys Steal

BY DR. WM. A. McKEEVER

(Professor in the University of Kansas)

"I did it for pure meanness." "The fellows higher up are taking things."

"Why should I work for $12 a week when others are grabbing all they can get?"

"The country is overrun with profiteers, so I thought I had a right to go out and get some easy money of my own."

The foregoing statements are taken from the free testimony of young store breakers and are typical of the sentiment of such young looters.

Stealing is now to some extent an ailment of the public mind, and we shall be able to curb the thieving and predatory tendencies of our youths only in proportion as we heal the disease higher up.

Profiteering, hoarding, excess profits, graft, cornering the market, easy money, loose spending, lavish display, tip taking in every hole in the wall—these matters have long constituted common topics of conversation and of press comment. The public mind is tinctured with the idea of grab and graft while the younger generation has almost lost its sense of property right and egal ownership.

Jails are now crowded with youths and young men charged with crimes against property, all the way from petty theft to bank robbery. A prison expert of long experience stated to me recently that there are now as many young men in our jails and penitentiaries as there are in our colleges, and that it is costing the country more to handle them than to educate the others.

The boys know and we also know that it is a kind of fraud to prosecute them for stealing and let the profiteer go scotfree. The officer, the jail and the law combined will not terrorise our youths into being good. They must have a new set of convictions on the subject, and a clearer conception of the integrity of society higher up.

My idea, therefore, of curing our youths of the mental disease of thefts and robbery—now so prevalent among them—and the primary cause of their actual stealing is to begin at the top. Put the big grafters and the profiteers in the foodstuffs and other necessities—put these into jail; force them to return to an honest basis of profit; shame them out of their habits of waste and profligacy.

In the press and the platform and the pulpit swing into line and help hammer graft and profiteering. To the undeveloped youth loot is loot, whether gotten by means of a corner in the sugar market or a hold-up at the corner grocery store.

National, State and municipal governments, I say, must first clean out the higher-up robbers' roost, and then it will be easy to handle the youngsters.

Beware Of Poison Ivy

BY BRICE BELDEN, M.D.

If in the course of one's Summer rambles poison ivy should happen to attack the skin it is well to know something about this unpleasant plant and its effects.

The most common ways of getting poisoned are accidentally brushing against the plants, casually pulling the leaves or breaking twigs with the fingers, coming in contact with broken roots in such operations as transplanting other plants and in clearing land, gardening, etc.

There is a widespread belief that some persons are immune to the poison but experiment has demonstrated that probably no person is entirely immune to it.

The symptoms of poisoning in the order of their appearance are redness of the skin, itching, swelling and the formation of numerous small elevated blisters or larger eruptions of the same order known as belbs.

The vesicles are at first filled with a clear fluid, which later becomes yellow. The blisters break and the contained fluid dries in the form of a yellow incrustation. As the malady passes, this incrustation comes away in the form of branny scales leaving the skin very tender and red for a short time. If the face is affected the eyelids may be so swelled as to be closed. There may also be fever.

Sugar of lead is a useful application in this affection as this drug precipitates the sticky oil carrying the poison. It should be dissolved in alcohol in the proportion of one half grain to the ounce and used as a wash. After this the inflamed parts should be treated by cooling applications, but ointments are not to be used, as they dissolve the poisonous oil and spread the irritation.

Chloride of ammonium, in a lotion of the strength of one ounce to three quarts of water, is an efficient remedy for this affection.

An infusion of lobelia is useful as a lotion in the treatment. It should be made by steeping an ounces of lobelia in a pint of water without boiling.
